

Promotional Items

Promotional items are a fun and exciting way to get your company name out to the world. You've probably seen pens, notepads, and even key chains with logos printed on them, but how about calculators or golf balls? Your logo and message can even be put on toys, such as stress balls and Rubik's cubes. Aside from being fun and visible, promotional items can benefit your company in many ways. Check and see if any of these ideas help you market your own products.

Our Top 10 Reasons to use Promotional Items

1. Target your best and your potential customers
2. Low presentation costs
3. Reinforce market position or build image
4. Build company morale, reward employees or attract new ones
5. Advertise new location, phone or website and build traffic
6. Expand demographics, increase name awareness and spook the competition
7. Promote off-price merchandise or move old inventory
8. Customer appreciation or generate new leads
9. Always accepted with thanks from customers
10. Keeps your name in front of customers better than yellow pages, without exposing them to your competitors & at a lower cost
